

Alternate Format Materials

Alternate Format Materials Library

Many students with disabilities encounter barriers with traditional print materials. Students with certain disabilities (known as perceptual disabilities) may not be able to use textbooks, class handouts, and other materials in its original form and instead the materials need to be provided in an alternate format. The Alternate Format Materials Library at the Department of Education provides on-line and off-line alternate format material to Newfoundland and Labrador students unable to use traditional print material.

Alternate Format Materials Learning Centre

The "Learning Centre" contains video, Adobe Captivate tutorials, information sheets and user guides that explain the services offered by the Alternate Format Materials Library. The learning modules available from the Centre include information about alternate format materials, copyright law, the application process to access alternate format materials, and the use of the Alternate Format Materials Website.
