

Junior Division Poetry (15 years & under)

Kelsey Brennan, Stephenville

Dress Code

Your shoulder unveiled distracts me

And your short dress invites me.

Your collar bone bare signals me to make a move

And your stomach exposed declares it wants me.

I am allowed to divulge in your beauty

I am allowed to penetrate your body.

The way you move is alluring,

Essentially telling me to take a course of action.

I am not wrong doing if you are encouraging,

I am simply obliging.

I am a man and you are a woman

You should have protected yourself.